Sync Contacts, Calendar, and Tasks from PC to any Google, Gmail, or Google Apps Account

PORTLAND, Ore. -- (BUSINESS WIRE) -- CompanionLink® Software announces two-way sync and backup between PC and Google®. The software allows people to sync contacts, calendar and tasks from the PC to any Google, Gmail™, or Google Apps account. Google also provides wireless sync with most popular smartphone and tablet platforms, including Apple® iPhone® and iPad®, Android™, BlackBerry®, Palm® webOS, and Windows® Phone devices. When used in conjunction with CompanionLink, people gain an easy way to sync their PC data to their smartphones with no monthly fees.

In addition, the Google sync software from CompanionLink can be used to backup PC data to the cloud. Once data is synced to Google, it is accessible virtually anywhere. Changes made in Google will sync back to the PC through CompanionLink.

CompanionLink's sync with Google is compatible with PC software such as Microsoft® Outlook® (including Outlook 2010 64-bit), Sage ACT!, IBM® Lotus Notes, Palm® Desktop, Novell® GroupWise, Salesforce® CRM, and Time & Chaos. The software is available for a one-time license starting at $39.95. More information and a free 14-day trial are available at www.companionlink.com/google.

CompanionLink also supports direct PC sync with Android, iPhone, iPad, BlackBerry, Palm webOS and Windows Mobile devices.
