

NOOKnewsstand Exceeds 650,000 Digital Periodical Subscriptions and Single Copy Sales Driven by NOOKcolor™ Customers in First Two Months

NEW YORK -- (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Barnes & Noble, Inc., the world's largest bookseller, is experiencing robust sales since it brought touch and full, rich color to a wide array of digital magazines and leading newspapers when it began shipping NOOKcolor, the first full-color touch Reader's Tablet. The company announced digital periodical sales are exceeding expectations with more than 650,000 total subscriptions and single copy sales driven by NOOKcolor customers reading interactive versions of all of their favorite newspapers and magazines, along with books and children's books.

With a dozen new titles, including O, the Oprah Magazine, Food Network Magazine, Martha Stewart Weddings, Guitar World and Consumer Reports ShopSmart;) added within the last month, NOOKnewsstand now features more than 120 top magazine and newspaper brands and offers the fastest-growing catalog of interactive, full-color magazines with something for every NOOKcolor customer.

Designed for people who love to read everything – books, magazines, newspapers and children's books – in rich, beautiful color, the award-winning NOOKcolor was the company's best-selling holiday gift. Since Christmas Day customers, hungry not only for new books, but also periodicals, have already ordered 150% more subscriptions than the total number sold over the entire previous 12 months. And sales continue to be very strong as NOOKcolor customers experience and enjoy the expansive NOOKnewsstand offering on the device's stunning 7-inch VividView™ Color Touchscreen.

“We are excited to offer a wide array of top periodicals and have seen explosive growth in NOOKnewsstand sales since the launch of NOOKcolor. Our customers clearly enjoy reading digital versions of their favorite magazines in rich, beautiful color, along with their daily newspapers, with the convenience of subscription or single issue purchases,” said Jonathan Shar, Vice President and General Manager of digital newsstand at Barnes & Noble. “We've had overwhelmingly positive feedback from our content partners as well and will continue to build upon our vast collection of periodicals and incorporate even more interactivity for NOOKcolor customers this year.”

Among the NOOKnewsstand magazine best-sellers are: Us Weekly, Cosmopolitan, National Geographic, Reader's Digest, Maxim, Star, O, the Oprah Magazine, Food Network Magazine, Women's Health and Shape. The top newspapers include USA TODAY, The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal.
