

BlackBerry Z10 Looks Like iPhone 5, Takes on Siri

Emily Price

RIM is set to announce the first devices running its new BlackBerry 10 operating system at an event on January 30 [1]. A lucky few, however, have already gotten their hands on what looks to be the new hardware, including German site TelekomPresse.

The site has the BlackBerry Z10, a touchscreen device with a similar look to some of the other popular smartphones out there — especially the iPhone 5.

Curious to see how the two compared, they put them side-by-side in the video here [2], running through both the physical design of both devices as well as some of their features.

Notably, the video shows a Siri-like voice control functionality in BlackBerry 10, that we haven't seen previously. As you can see in the test above, it beats Siri for speed.

While similar at first glance, design-wise the two phones do have some differences. The Z10 has a 4.2-inch screen, slightly larger than the iPhone 5's 4-inch display. Both phones have a power button on top, however, the button on the BlackBerry is in the center of the top of the phone, while the iPhone's is on the right on the device.

BlackBerry Z10 Looks Like iPhone 5, Takes on Siri

Published on Wireless Design & Development (<http://www.wirelessdesignmag.com>)

---

The volume controls are on the right side of the Z10, and left side of the iPhone 5. When it comes to power, the connection for the iPhone 5 is on the bottom of the device with the headphone jack, while the HDMI and USB connections on the Z10 are located on the left.

Check out the video above for a look at the full comparison of the two devices. Are you looking forward to BlackBerry 10? Can the new OS save RIM?

Source URL (retrieved on 03/03/2015 - 12:29pm):

http://www.wirelessdesignmag.com/news/2013/01/blackberry-z10-looks-iphone-5-takes-siri?qt-digital\_editions=0&qt-blogs=0

Links:

- [1] <http://mashable.com/2012/11/12/rim-blackberry-10-january-13/>
- [2] <http://mashable.com/2013/01/21/blackberryz10-versus-iphone-5/>