

Photos of the Day: Robot Plays Angry Birds

Georgia Institute of Technology

A robot plays Angry Birds using a tablet. Researchers see their system as a future rehabilitation tool for children with cognitive and motor-skill disabilities. (Georgia Tech)

Read: Your Next Angry Birds Opponent Could Be a Robot [1]

Photos of the Day: Robot Plays Angry Birds

Published on Wireless Design & Development (<http://www.wirelessdesignmag.com>)

Hae Won Park, a postdoctoral fellow in the School of Electrical and Computing Engineering, teaches a robot how to play Angry Birds. (Georgia Tech)

Robot celebrates after a successful turn in Angry Birds. (Georgia Tech)

For more information, visit www.gatech.edu [2].

Source URL (retrieved on 03/06/2015 - 4:16pm):

<http://www.wirelessdesignmag.com/news/2014/07/photos-day-robot-plays-angry-birds>

Links:

[1] <http://www.wirelessdesignmag.com/news/2014/07/your-next-angry-birds-opponent-could-be-robot>

[2] <http://www.gatech.edu>